Keeping You Informed For Over 40 Years

February 2015

50 Years Ago - A Look Back

By Meg Honey

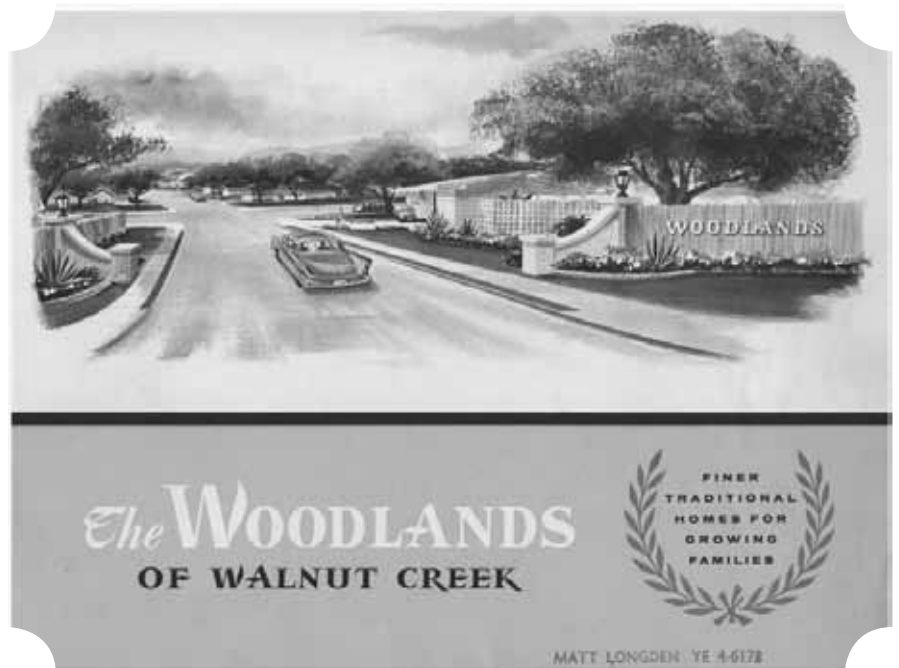

1965...Americans welcomed Lyndon Johnson to his second term as President; celebrated as My Fair Lady won eight Academy Awards; watched in horror as peaceful voting rights marchers were beaten by law officials in Selma, Alabama; and rocked out to Bob Dylan's influential album Highway 61 Revisited. Sandy Koufax pitched a perfect game against the Chicago Cubs and the Beatles played the first stadium concert at New York City's Shea Stadium...and, in Walnut Creek, exciting events took place and major changes were underway.

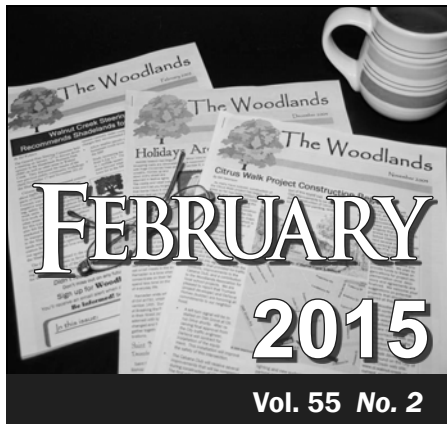

On September 19, 1965, legendary musician Duke Ellington performed in the city library to kick off the Art Forum series. Viewers paid $2.50 to witness the historic performance, and, over the year, the series featured local jazz great Dave Brubeck and sculptor Benny Bufano (who would later create The Hand of Peace sculpture now displayed in Civic Park). On October 5, 1965, city voters approved two bond measures to fund the future Heather Farm and Rudgear parks, upgrade Larkey Park, and construct an 18-hole golf course that would become Boundary Oak.

After acquiring an abandoned Walnut Growers' Association

walnut warehouse, the city converted the building into the 449-seat Civic Arts Theatre and Gallery, opened on December 3, 1965. In reflecting on this time of expansion and improvement, former mayor Bob Schroder recalled, "There was an extremely strong spirit of community, where the residential, political, and business communities worked together to make Walnut Creek what it is today." (Brad Rovanner, Walnut Creek: An Illustrated History)

This Month at the Cabana Club

By Joanne Wathen

It's only January and it's cold out there-- but we have news from the Cabana Club! First of all, the Cabana Club is proud to announce that the Walnut Creek Aquanuts will be using our facility for practices until the end of March. The Aquanuts are a world-renowned synchronized swimming team that regularly produces Olympic athletes, so if you see a parking lot full of cars, feel free to drop in and watch a little bit of their practice. They are amazing!

Also, the Cabana Club is hosting a swim team registration BBQ on Sunday, March 8th from 3-5 pm. Swim team sign-ups will be held from 1-3 pm and the BBQ from 3-5 pm. This is a great opportunity to introduce any prospective members to the Cabana Club. Don't forget that if you refer a new member, you will receive $100 off your yearly dues. So come on down and reconnect with your neighbors after a long winter. Membership forms will be available and the pool will be open, weather permitting.

Mark your calendars now for the 3rd annual Woodlands 5K Family Fun Run and pancake breakfast. It will be taking place on Sunday, March 22nd at 9 a.m. Registration forms will be available at the registration BBQ or use the one in this issue of The Woodlands Newsletter.

Once again, the Cabana Club will be open during spring break (April 6th-11th) weather permitting. Stay tuned for hours.

Cub Scouts Bring Holiday Cheer to Seniors

On Saturday, December 20th, Cub Scouts from Pack 464 joined residents at Sunrise Senior Living in Walnut Creek for an afternoon of caroling and visiting. Dressed in their formal uniforms, 20 Cub Scouts and their parents gathered in the main lounge to sing lots of holiday favorites. Many joined in as the boys sung songs including Jingle Bells and the Twelve Days of Christmas. The boys got adventurous (as they are known to be) and took requests which included White Christmas - it turned out quite nice! Everyone's favorite part of the day was the time spent meeting and talking with everyone and sharing stories about the holidays, Scouting, and other interests.

Cub Scouts is an organization focused on providing activities, fun, and learning for boys in the 1st through 5th grades. Boys from Valle Verde Elementary, Seven Hills School and Eagle Peak Montessori School make up Cub Scout Pack 464 in Walnut Creek. Pack 464 is always happy to welcome new members! Our next big event is the annual Pinewood Derby at the end of January and then the Blue & Gold Banquet in February. More information is available on the Pack website at <http://pack464walnutcreek.org/>.

All-Purpose Valentine's Day Advice

By Bill Gilmyers

For better or worse, the long winter continues, football season is done and Gin-and-Tonic-Season doesn't begin for another month and a half, which can only mean one thing - Valentine's Day is here. I'm not sure there's a single holiday that is simultaneously obsessed about, and hated, by so many people. Especially given that many of the obsessives and haters are, in fact, the same people. Let's face it, it's not easy for anyone to really enjoy this holiday, unless you are a low-quality chocolate manufacturer.

Still, the Woodlands Newsletter is here to help you make the best of it, with the top-notch advice you'd expect from a non-profit, volunteer-supported publication written on a Saturday afternoon while the kid bangs out an episode or two of Elmo, Game of Thrones, or whatever it is that 3-year-olds are watching these days. Whatever your romantic circumstances, we'll do what we can to get you out of your Valentine's jam:

Are you single? This is simultaneously the best and worst case situation on Valentine's Day. On the one hand, you have to observe all those happy couples making goo-goo eyes at each other and getting ready to go out on a romantic dinner together, all while wondering when your ship will come in. On the other hand, those couples probably aren't actually all that happy, that dinner is gonna be really expensive, and the food is definitely going to blow. So don't fret.

Recommendation: For the ladies, crack open a bottle of wine, cue up a nice tear-jerker on Netflix to match your mood and make sure you've got a full box of tissues. For the men, spoil yourself with a nice seven-course meal with a six-pack and a hot dog. You'll probably need a box of tissues as well.

Are you married? Why are you celebrating this holiday at all? You already have an anniversary, which unless you and your spouse were the least forward-thinking wedding day schedulers ever, is not on Valentine's Day. So do all your lovey-dovey stuff on that random Thursday in July and leave VD to the amateurs.

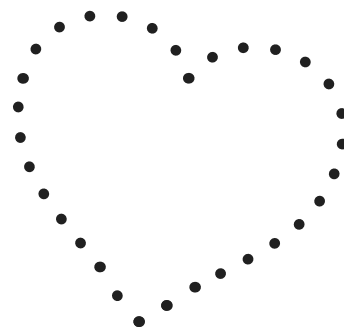

Are in you a serious relationship? Sadly, you're probably going to have to go through the motions today as you continue to evaluate you partner based on their ability and willingness to get caught up in the romance of this contrived holiday. If you are lucky this person will have married or dumped you by the time February 14, 2016 rolls around.

Are you a high-school student dating another high-school student? Today you will stare into the eyes of your soulmate and wonder at the cosmic improbability that the person of your dreams, your one true match, somehow ended up in your homeroom here in the MDUSD. The long-term implications of this relationship to the current and future you are simply mind-boggling, and today is the day you can prove how deep and abiding the connection between the two of you really is. Surely this is one of the biggest days of your life

It's not. In a year or two you'll be in college and won't even remember what Casanova looked like.

Are you a high-school student dating a college student? Yeah, you should probably just cut that out.

Are you a house pet? Assuming you have a responsible owner, your interest in all things romantic has probably been surgically removed, along with a few other parts. If not, feel free to have at it with the couch or the back of someone's leg. After all, Valentine's Day is for lovers.

Random Thoughts About 2015

By Erik Ehlers

So after an exciting year, it appears that 2015 will be another year with some exciting changes ahead. While no one knows exactly what effects the new Safeway development will have on the Woodlands, and whether the umpteenth effort to consciously uncouple from the Mount Diablo School District will in fact be successful, it seems clear that we had all best prepare for change to come our way. In that spirit, here are a few suggestions for the year ahead.

Let's all think of some whimsical ways to cross both Oak Grove and Ygnacio Valley with the increased traffic likely to come when Safeway opens its doors. Since this isn't the Iron Horse Trail, it seems unlikely we'll get big money to build a mini-Brooklyn Bridge across YVR. So perhaps we can watch a few videos of Cirque du Soleil online, then we can shimmy across what appears to the untrained eye to be a PG&E power line stretching across the road. Wait, those are actually power lines? Perhaps then we need an alternative solution. Do we have any mechanically minded local folks who would be able to build us a totally safe, risk free personal catapult? Or perhaps we can get Elon Musk to build his hyperloop transporter across the two local roads. That thing is supposed to be so fast, we'll be at our destination months before we left. Spare me the theoretical physics, I understand that's not how it is supposed to work. But this way seems more fun. Of course, if you don't want to brave the onrushing lines of cars headed to Safeway and the new Whole Foods, perhaps you could take a stand and shop at the closest supermarket of them all, good old Charlie Brown, I mean Nob Hill. These folks actually support local neighborhood events and you have to wait at exactly zero traffic lights to get there from anywhere in the Woodlands.

Speaking of Whole Foods, has anyone actually been over to the other side of town and visited their wonderful existing Walnut Creek store? The store is great, the parking, not so much. That lot is like a demolition derby, with soccer moms racing from Botox treatments to pick up organic arugula and locally sourced escargot. We can all hope that as part of the renovation to Encina Grande, they decide to make the parking lot less of a Roman Colosseum experience. If you're curious, we won't be playing the part of the lions.

Back on our side of town, there has to be some way to walk to these new markets without completely endangering our lives. Perhaps a tunnel – anyone have a rusty spoon and a willingness to crawl through a few hundred feet of Andy Dufresne's favorite part of Tough Mudder? In all seriousness, there must be a safer way than just having crosswalks with all the increased traffic. If not, I'm sure someone will post to Next Door about all the evils associated with making the journey. That app is a great idea, but the level of discourse sometimes makes me hope it goes the way of MySpace. Looking at the intersections, perhaps instead of a Mickey D's, we'll have someone interested in putting something that we will want in place of the illustrious haunted bank building. Now that the Woodlands sign has fallen down, all that remains is the brickwork that reminds me daily of an abandoned steel mill. If you've ever seen Youngstown, you know what I mean. Maybe I need some suggestions on what should go there – I better post to Next Door.
