Part II: Q&A with Walnut Creek Chief of Police and Woodlands Resident Tom Chaplin with assistance from Lt. Joe Donleavy

By Jared Asch

1. How can residents, the police and the city's traffic engineers address speeding on Citrus, Perada and Peachwillow?

As your question suggests; speeding and traffic congestion is an issue that no one group can solve. First, we want to remind those who live in the area that safe and courteous driving behavior begins with you. Saturated traffic enforcement efforts in response to community speed complaints show that a fair number of the speeders cited actually live in the area. Second, the City's Traffic Engineer has the ability to conduct traffic studies in areas where there are complaints of speed or a higher than normal history of vehicle collisions. The Traffic Engineer has a variety of traffic-calming options available, but those options are often limited by engineering restrictions, funds and prioritization with other problem areas.

Lastly, the Police Department addresses speeding complaints in most areas by doing a few different things.

We have radar trailers available to put out in problem spots. These trailers post driver/vehicle speeds on digital displays and help to reduce the speed through the area. We also use a device we call a "radar rat" that records speed history over a three-day period. The data is useful in letting the residents know what the true speed problem is and also gives our officers information on the best time to conduct enforcement. We have used this equipment in the Woodlands in the past. Enforcement by our officers is an effective means to reduce speeding issues, but sustained enforcement can only be maintained for brief periods before those officers are deployed to other complaint areas. Typical results of saturated enforcement are that speeds drop in an area for a time and then gradually increase if enforcement is allowed to lapse for a significant period of time. We also have a Reckless Driver Letter program wherein we send letters to the registered owners of vehicles that are reported as driving reckless. To report a reckless driver, please call our non-emergency number (925-943-5844) and provide a description and license plate, if possible. This program serves as a preventative tool, as well as an educational tool.

2. Under new state laws, what should residents know about marijuana? Can we grow it? Smoke it? Sell it? What restrictions are there?

As most people are aware, passage of Prop 64 by the voters legalized recreational marijuana in California. Cities were given authority to regulate certain commercial aspects of legalized marijuana. Marijuana can be grown indoors (six plants per residence) and smoked indoors by residents. The law does not allow for the selling of marijuana by individuals. The City Council has put in place a temporary ban on outdoor growing and retail sales. This ban can be in effect until March of 2019 while the Council studies the issue further. The Council also expanded the prior smoking ordinance to include marijuana.

Thanksgiving Pet Safety

By American Veterinary Medical Association
AVMA.org

Thanksgiving is a special holiday that brings together family and friends, but it also can carry some hazards for pets. Holiday food needs to be kept away from pets, and pet owners who travel need to either transport their pets safely or find safe accommodations for them at home. Follow these tips to keep your pets healthy and safe during the holiday.

Poison Risks

Overindulging in the family feast can be unhealthy for humans, but even worse for pets: Fatty foods are hard for animals to digest. Poultry bones can damage your pet's digestive tract. And holiday sweets can contain ingredients that are poisonous to pets.

Keep the feast on the table—not under it. Eating turkey or turkey skin – sometimes even a small amount – can cause a life-threatening condition in pets known as pancreatitis. Fatty foods are hard for animals to digest, and many foods that are healthy for people are poisonous to pets – including onions, raisins and grapes. If you want to share a Thanksgiving treat with your pet, make or buy a treat that is made just for them.

No pie or other desserts for your pooch. Chocolate can be harmful for pets, even though many dogs find it tempting and will sniff it out and eat it. The artificial sweetener called xylitol – commonly used in gum and sugar-free baked goods – also can be deadly if consumed by dogs or cats.

Yeast dough can cause problems for pets, including painful gas and potentially dangerous bloating.

Put the trash away where your pets can't find it. A turkey carcass sitting out on the carving table, or left in a trash container that is open or easily opened, could be deadly to your family pet. Dispose of turkey carcasses and bones – and anything used to wrap or tie the meat, such as strings, bags and packaging – in a covered, tightly secured trash bag placed in a closed trash container outdoors (or behind a closed, locked door).

Be careful with decorative plants. Don't forget that some flowers and festive plants can be toxic to pets. These include amaryllis, Baby's Breath, Sweet William, some ferns, hydrangeas and more. The ASPCA offers lists of plants that are toxic to both dogs and cats, but the safest route is simply to keep your pets away from all plants and table decorations.

Quick action can save lives. If you believe your pet has been poisoned or eaten something it shouldn't have, call your veterinarian or local veterinary emergency clinic immediately. You may also want to call the ASPCA Poison Control Hotline: 888-426-4435. Signs of pet distress include: sudden changes in behavior, depression, pain, vomiting, or diarrhea. Contact your veterinarian immediately.

Fire Safety

By Fire Marshal Robert Marshall

Public Information Officer

Contra Costa County Fire Protection District

With the recent fires in the North Bay, it is important that people understand what it means to evacuate should there be a fire in their neighborhood. As we've seen, sometimes you don't have very much time to evacuate should the order be given. For this reason, we like to recommend that people adopt "Ready, Set, Go!"

While "Ready, Set, Go!" is designed for people to evacuate when there is the threat of wildfire, it is good for any sort of evacuation order that is given.

Ready

"Ready" means that you are prepared well in advance of any emergency that should arise. Make sure you have a place where all of your important documents are, that you have emergency supplies ready, which would include medication, and other necessities that you can grab in a hurry when you make the decision to leave. You may only have a matter of minutes, or even seconds once the order is given to evacuate, and you may not have enough time to grab things if they are in multiple places. And lastly, make sure that you know how you are going to evacuate. What if one road is closed? Do you have secondary ways out? What is your plan?

Set

"Set" is mostly about situational awareness. You need to know things like what is going on, how close it is to your home, and what officials think is going to occur. Sometimes we know these things, and other times we don't. But in either case you need to be paying attention to news outlets, social media, and other forms of communication that public agencies might use to reach you.

"Go!"

"Go!" means to activate your plan. When an order to evacuate is given, agencies such as the fire department or local law enforcement agency will be very busy. While we are there to help, we need strong partners to make things go smoothly, and that's where preparing ahead of time by making sure that you are ready, and set helps us, so that we can mitigate the emergency before us. Delaying can sometimes mean that we have to divert resources to help somebody who could have helped themselves, meaning that we can't help people who don't have that ability.

We never know when an emergency will happen. Whether it is a large wildland fire, a strong earthquake, or even a broken gas main somewhere near your home or business, "Ready, Set, Go!" will serve you well, while allowing the emergency services to do the most good for the most people. For more information go to www.ready.gov. There you will find many resources that can help in all sorts of emergencies.

Turkey Trot to your Fridge

By Erik Ehlers

Happy Thanksgiving. What a wonderful day; there's the option of sleeping in – on a Thursday no less, or an early day downtown brisk Turkey Trot, so that you feel like you've earned the ridiculous amount of calories you're about to consume. Throughout the day, you can watch football, assuming you want to see visages of Detroit and Dallas, with this year's bonus third game coming to us from the nation's capital. This assumes we can all enjoy the players' pigskin prowess without pondering the pounding partaken by the participants' pates. In other words, you have to be ok with a side of scrambled brains.

So perhaps watching turkey day football isn't your jam. Why not get out with friends and play a little touch football? Less likely to induce CTE, there's still a great opportunity to get to know the folks down at the ER, followed by an orthopedist and a physical therapist, since apparently sprinting around in cool temperatures with minimal warmup may not work as well as it did when you were 22. Who doesn't love a reminder that Father Time is still undefeated?

Well, at least there's the unmitigated joy of delicious dishes spread out for the Thanksgiving celebration. We may not face the same trials and tribulations as the original Pilgrims and Native Americans who observed that first feast, but we can appreciate a cultural cheat day, where endless calories certainly must know that they are not allowed to clog arteries or attach themselves to our love handles. That does sound like a worthy way of charging up for the late night Thanksgiving sales, whether you're working or finding bargains, followed by the joyous all-American kickoff of the holiday season that is Black Friday. If you can find the best place to get the latest iPhones and TVs, that certainly is doing your part to celebrate Divine Providence. If not, maybe Friday is the day to sleep in – you'll be in a food coma, and besides, it's only 5.5 weeks until New Year's Resolutions kick in, the most arduous two weeks of the year. At least the gym won't be so busy by mid-January.

3. What can police and parents do to address cyberbullying among school age students?

Cyberbullying is an issue that parents should take seriously. While examples of extreme cyberbullying are rare, most of us have seen media reports of the worst cases where a young person has taken their life as a direct result of cyberbullying. To prevent this, we suggest that parents take an active part in knowing and monitoring the social media platforms their children are using. Talk to your children about cyberbullying, both in regard to letting you know if they are being cyberbullied, as well as not engaging in behavior that would make them a cyberbully. Parents should look for sudden changes in their children's behavior that might be symptoms of cyberbullying. These could include a sudden reluctance to attend school, disengaging socially from friends and signs of moodiness or depression. If parents do become aware of cyberbullying they should report it immediately both to their child's school and to the Police Department. We do have School Resource Officers that address these issues as they become aware of them.

4. Any other recommendations for us to prevent crime in the Woodlands? Any additional police resources we can take advantage of?

As your partners in crime prevention, we strongly suggest that our residents connect with the Police Department through a variety of social media platforms including Nextdoor, Nixle, Facebook and Twitter. We use these platforms to share crime prevention tips, solicit information related to specific criminal investigations, broadcast advisory messages concerning traffic disruptions and in-progress crimes, announce changes within the Police Department, and to provide timely and relevant information to our community. To the extent that we reasonably can, I would like for you to know what we – your Police Department – know when it comes to criminal activity in the Woodlands.

Finally, for all of the recommendations and target hardening (what does target hardening mean?) that we implement, there are still criminals out there who will take advantage of the opportunity to steal or commit other offenses. If we are careful about keeping valuables out of sight (to include not leaving valuables in vehicles, even when locked), keeping unattended garages closed, moving packages and mail inside as soon as practical, and watching out for our neighbors; we can prevent crime in the Woodlands and continue to enjoy a safe neighborhood with an exceptional quality of life.

Wheat Berry Salad Recipe

By Colleen O'Donnell

This salad combines autumnal colors and flavors and is a great one to make on a Sunday to enjoy into the week. It is endlessly adaptable- just change up the dried fruit and nuts, etc. Wheat berries are the whole grain of wheat—before any processing occurs. They are hearty and provide great texture. They are usually found in the bulk section at the grocery store.

Salad

1 ½ cup wheat berries (sometimes referred to as hard winter wheat berries)
1 red onion, diced
½ Tablespoon Olive Oil
½ Tablespoon Unsalted Butter
Pinch of salt
6 green onions, thinly sliced
1 large Fuji apple, cored and cut into small chunks
½ cup toasted slivered almonds
½ cup dried unsweetened cherries, chopped
2 T finely chopped parsley
½ cup pomegranate seeds (arils)

Dressing

1 teaspoon Dijon mustard
1 teaspoon honey
¼ cup Apple Cider Vinegar
½ cup Extra Virgin Olive Oil
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon freshly ground pepper

1. Rinse the wheat berries and place in a large pot and cover with water. Bring to a boil and simmer for about an hour. Grains will be chewy.
2. Meanwhile, dice the red onion. Combine the butter and olive oil in a small skillet and add the red onion and pinch of salt. Cook over low heat until the onion is soft and just starting to turn golden brown in some spots. Place in a large bowl.
3. Combine ingredients for dressing in a bowl or jar—mix to combine. Set aside.
4. When the wheat berries are done, drain well and add to the large bowl with the red onion—stir to combine.
5. While the wheat berries are hot, add a few Tablespoons of dressing and stir to combine.
6. Once cool to room temperature, add in the sliced green onions, chopped apple, chopped dried cherries, slivered almonds, parsley and pomegranate seeds.
7. Add more dressing to your liking. I used about  $\frac{3}{4}$  of the dressing.

The salad keeps well. The dressing keeps the apples from turning brown and the flavors meld. The salad benefits from a few hours or even overnight in the fridge. Add a drizzle of dressing before serving.
